If you once used hair extensions, super double drawn hair may be not an unfamiliar term. This is one of the best types of hair standard available with the ideal thick tresses for ladies who love to have full hair. And when this hair standard goes with the latest hair trend, bone straight hair, it's really a killer combo that makes every girl falls for it. So in this blog post, we will talk about super double drawn bone straight hair, how it's made, the pros and cons, and why it's a must item that every hair vendor should supply. So, here we go.

HOW TO DEFINE SUPER DOUBLE DRAWN BONE STRAIGHT HAIR?

As we have mentioned in the previous post, bone straight hair is categorized into three main types based on the hair standard (often known as hair grade). These hair standards include single drawn hair, double drawn hair, super double drawn hair. And currently, super double drawn bone straight hair is the most popular hair in Nigeria.

Super double drawn bone straight weft is featured with the hair having the same length from root to tip. You can see a typical bundle of super double drawn bone straight hair is thicker at the hair ends when compared to other hair types.

So, is super double drawn hair really stand out from the other?

The answer is yes. Although all the three types of bone straight human hair are stunning, super double drawn bone straight weft hair is the favorite choice among many Nigerian women. It brings the most natural look and the perfect thickness for ladies who want to opt for silky and thick tresses.

HOW SUPER DOUBLE DRAWN BONE STRAIGHT HAIR IS MADE?

Like other types of human hair weft, super double drawn bone straight hair weft also undergoes a drawing and hackling processes. These processes are where the hair strands of a bundle are selected to get a limited amount of hair with the same length.

The hair will be drawn from the drawn card for head perfection, yet only the longer hair is being drawn. After that, it will be hackled to remove the short strands. Thanks to these processes, hair extensions can get a full and vibrant look just like natural hair.

For super double drawn bone straight weft hair, the production process is a bit more complicated than the other types. The professionals have to pluck the hair by hand to pick out the remaining shorter hair after the drawing process. In this way, the bundles can have the thick hair ends with less portion of hair with the different hair lengths than the other types.
